4. The defendant(s) owes damages to the Plaintiff in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs.
5. The basis for plaintiff's claim against the defendant(s) (Here state why you claim the defendant or defendants owe you money).
Equifax was negligent in failing to protect my personal data including but not limited to my social security number, address and phone number. Equifax had a duty to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;

8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;
9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;

Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;

8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;
9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and
10. the loss of productivity and value of their time spent attempting to ameliorate, mitigate and deal with the actual and future consequences of the data breach, including finding fraudulent charges, cancelling and reissuing cards, purchasing credit monitoring and identity theft protection services, imposition of withdrawal and purchase limits on compromised accounts, and the stress, nuisance and annoyance of dealing with all such issues resulting from the Data Breach.

4. The defendant(s) owes damages to the Plaintiff in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs.
5. The basis for plaintiff's claim against the defendant(s) (Here state why you claim the defendant or defendants owe you money):
Equifax was negligent in failing to protect my personal data including but not limited to my social security number, address and phone number. Equifax had a duty to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;

8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;
9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and
10. the loss of productivity and value of their time spent attempting to ameliorate, mitigate and deal with the actual and future consequences of the data breach, including finding fraudulent charges, cancelling and reissuing cards, purchasing credit monitoring and identity theft protection services, imposition of withdrawal and purchase limits on compromised accounts, and the stress, nuisance and annoyance of dealing with all such issues resulting from the Data Breach.

4. The defendant(s) owes damages to the Plaintiff in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs.

5. The basis for plaintiff's claim against the defendant(s) (Here state why you claim the defendant or defendants owe you money).

Equifax was negligent in failing to protect my personal data including but not limited to my social security number, address and phone number. Equifax had a duty to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;

8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;
9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and
10. the loss of productivity and value of their time spent attempting to ameliorate, mitigate and deal with the actual and future consequences of the data breach, including finding fraudulent charges, cancelling and reissuing cards, purchasing credit monitoring and identity theft protection services, imposition of withdrawal and purchase limits on compromised accounts, and the stress, nuisance and annoyance of dealing with all such issues resulting from the Data Breach.

4. The defendant(s) owes damages to the Plaintiff in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs.
5. The basis for plaintiff's claim against the defendant(s) (Here state why you claim the defendant or defendants owe you money).
Equifax was negligent in failing to protect my personal data including but not limited to my social security number, address and phone number. Equifax had a duty to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;

8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;
9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and
10. the loss of productivity and value of their time spent attempting to ameliorate, mitigate and deal with the actual and future consequences of the data breach, including finding fraudulent charges, cancelling and reissuing cards, purchasing credit monitoring and identity theft protection services, imposition of withdrawal and purchase limits on compromised accounts, and the stress, nuisance and annoyance of dealing with all such issues resulting from the Data Breach.

4. The defendant(s) owes damages to the Plaintiff in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs.
5. The basis for plaintiff's claim against the defendant(s) (Here state why you claim the defendant or defendants owe you money).

Equifax was negligent in failing to protect my personal data including but not limited to my social security number, address and phone number. Equifax had a duty to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;
8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;

9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and
10. the loss of productivity and value of their time spent attempting to ameliorate, mitigate and deal with the actual and future consequences of the data breach, including finding fraudulent charges, cancelling and reissuing cards, purchasing credit monitoring and identity theft protection services, imposition of withdrawal and purchase limits on compromised accounts, and the stress, nuisance and annoyance of dealing with all such issues resulting from the Data Breach.

4. The defendant(s) owes damages to the Plaintiff in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs.

5. The basis for plaintiff's claim against the defendant(s) (Here state why you claim the defendant or defendants owe you money).

Equifax was negligent in failing to protect my personal data including but not limited to my social security number, address and phone number. Equifax had a duty to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;

8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;
9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and
10. the loss of productivity and value of their time spent attempting to ameliorate, mitigate and deal with the actual and future consequences of the data breach, including finding fraudulent charges, cancelling and reissuing cards, purchasing credit monitoring and identity theft protection services, imposition of withdrawal and purchase limits on compromised accounts, and the stress, nuisance and annoyance of dealing with all such issues resulting from the Data Breach.

Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this date breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;
8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;

9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and
10. the loss of productivity and value of their time spent attempting to ameliorate, mitigate and deal with the actual and future consequences of the data breach, including finding fraudulent charges, cancelling and reissuing cards, purchasing credit monitoring and identity theft protection services, imposition of withdrawal and purchase limits on compromised accounts, and the stress, nuisance and annoyance of dealing with all such issues resulting from the Data Breach.

4. The defendant(s) owes damages to the Plaintiff in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs.
5. The basis for plaintiff's claim against the defendant(s) (Here state why you claim the defendant or defendants owe you money).
Equifax was negligent in failing to protect my personal data including but not limited to my social security number, address and phone number. Equifax had a duty to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;

8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;
9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and
10. the loss of productivity and value of their time spent attempting to ameliorate, mitigate and deal with the actual and future consequences of the data breach, including finding fraudulent charges, cancelling and reissuing cards, purchasing credit monitoring and identity theft protection services, imposition of withdrawal and purchase limits on compromised accounts, and the stress, nuisance and annoyance of dealing with all such issues resulting from the Data Breach.

4. The defendant(s) owes damages to the Plaintiff in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs.
5. The basis for plaintiff's claim against the defendant(s) (Here state why you claim the defendant or defendants owe you money).
Equifax was negligent in failing to protect my personal data including but not limited to my social security number, address and phone number. Equifax had a duty to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;

8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;
9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and
10. the loss of productivity and value of their time spent attempting to ameliorate, mitigate and deal with the actual and future consequences of the data breach, including finding fraudulent charges, cancelling and reissuing cards, purchasing credit monitoring and identity theft protection services, imposition of withdrawal and purchase limits on compromised accounts, and the stress, nuisance and annoyance of dealing with all such issues resulting from the Data Breach.

4. The defendant(s) owes damages to the Plaintiff in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs.
5. The basis for plaintiff's claim against the defendant(s) (Here state why you claim the defendant or defendants owe you money).
Equifax was negligent in failing to protect my personal data including but not limited to my social security number, address and phone number. Equifax had a duty to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;
8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;

9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and
10. the loss of productivity and value of their time spent attempting to ameliorate, mitigate and deal with the actual and future consequences of the data breach, including finding fraudulent charges, cancelling and reissuing cards, purchasing credit monitoring and identity theft protection services, imposition of withdrawal and purchase limits on compromised accounts, and the stress, nuisance and annoyance of dealing with all such issues resulting from the Data Breach.

4. The defendant(s) owes damages to the Plaintiff in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs.
5. The basis for plaintiff's claim against the defendant(s) (Here state why you claim the defendant or defendants owe you money).
Equifax was negligent in failing to protect my personal data including but not limited to my social security number, address and phone number. Equifax had a duty to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;

8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;
9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and

Equifax was negligent in failing to protect my personal data including but not limited to my social security number, address and phone number. Equifax had a duty to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;

8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;
9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and

Equifax was negligent in failing to protect my personal data including but not limited to my social security number, address and phone number. Equifax had a duty to protect the personal data it was entrusted with to use reasonable care to protect it from unauthorized access by third parties and to stop data breaches by taking reasonable steps to update its cybersecurity software. Equifax failed to provide sufficient technological safeguards which caused my personal financial information to be hacked. Equifax became aware of a specific vulnerability with the Apache Struts software it employed on March 9, 2017, but failed to update or patch their software despite their own policy which requires such update/patches to be made within 48 hours. Equifax acknowledges this data breach occurred between May 2017 and July 2017. Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;

Equifax claims it first discovered the breach July 29, 2017 and thereafter withheld this vital information from me until going public on September 7, 2017. Equifax has caused substantial harm to Plaintiff, including serious risks of credit harm and identity theft for years to come.

Thereafter, I have had to check my credit to ensure that my information has not been misused; I will have to purchase credit protection services and insurance for myself; and I have suffered stress from the knowledge that my private information has been given to others for their ill-gotten gains. Equifax's conduct constitutes general negligence as well as negligence per se as a violation of the statutory duties set forth in the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act and the Mississippi Consumer Protection Act (Miss. Code Ann. § 75-24-1 et seq., 15 USC § 45. Further, Equifax has committed the tort of invasion of privacy by publicly disclosing private facts and have reached the bailment arrangement of the parties.

The plaintiff is seeking the maximum allowed by this court in the amount of $3500.00 plus costs. Equifax's wrongful actions and inaction directly and proximately caused the theft and dissemination into the public domain of Plaintiff's personal data, causing them to suffer, and continue to suffer, economic damages and other actual harm for which they are entitled to compensation, including:

1. theft of their personal and financial information;
2. unauthorized charges on their debit and credit card accounts;
3. the imminent and certainly impending injury flowing from potential fraud and identity theft posed by their PII being placed in the hands of criminals and already misused via the sale of Plaintiffs' and Class Members' information on the black market;
4. the untimely and inadequate notification of the Data Breach;
5. the improper disclosure of their personal data;
6. loss of privacy;
7. ascertainable losses in the form of out-of-pocket expenses and the value of their time reasonably incurred to remedy or mitigate the effects of the Data Breach;

8. ascertainable losses in the form of deprivation of the value of their personal data, for which there is a well-established national and international market;
9. ascertainable losses in the form of the loss of cash back or other benefits as a result of their inability to use certain accounts and cards affected by the Data Breach; and
10. the loss of productivity and value of their time spent attempting to ameliorate, mitigate and deal with the actual and future consequences of the data breach, including finding fraudulent charges, cancelling and reissuing cards, purchasing credit monitoring and identity theft protection services, imposition of withdrawal and purchase limits on compromised accounts, and the stress, nuisance and annoyance of dealing with all such issues resulting from the Data Breach.
